Seed

Seed is a general standard to aid in the discovery and consumption of discrete units of work contained within a Docker image.

See the full specification for details.